Youth Empowerment Mini Workshop

This activity based mini workshop will focus on the skills and tools required to get admitted to universities and navigate the challenges of preparing for a rapidly evolving global demand for an educated workforce.

University of California's Center for Information Technology Research in the Interest of Society and the Banatao Institute (CITRIS) will be conducting this session for the first time in Bangladesh.

CITRIS Incubates and Nurtures Scientific Pioneers through Innovation, Research and Education to inspire youth. It will also discuss the ongoing transformation in education and trends shaping the nature of new opportunities and careers of the future.

If you are grade 11-12 student, or completed your HSC and looking forward to apply to U.S. university this/next year this is a must attend session. It will also benefit you if you are an undergraduate student planning to pursue graduate school in the USA.
